In typography, rivers (or rivers of white) are gaps in typesetting which appear to run through a paragraph of text due to a coincidental alignment of spaces. Rivers can occur regardless of the spacing settings, but are most noticeable with wide inter-word spaces caused by full text justification or monospaced fonts.

Water treatment started here around 1850. The old filter beds arc now the site of New River Estate: modern flats with a generous, if simply designed, area of open space. As we approach the new water treatment works, we get a good view of Alexandra Palace. The path now leaves the River again as it enters a tunnel. The tunnel, built in 1859, can be seen from the bridge over Station Road.
